

American Indian Cancer Foundation Circle of Cultures Community Grant Initiative

Circle of Cultures Traditional Tobacco Grant Application

5 Tribal Nations will receive funding to implement community-led culturally based initiatives around traditional tobacco.

The American Indian Cancer Foundation (AICAF) is a national nonprofit organization that was established to address the tremendous cancer inequities faced by American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) people. At AICAF, we strive to eliminate the tremendous cancer burdens faced by our communities through improved access to prevention, early detection, treatment, and survivor support.

Background:

The foundation of Creating Connections Project: Keeping Tobacco Sacred is based on the two tobacco ways principles that honor the original intention of traditional tobacco. This principle honors tobacco as a traditional and sacred gift from the Creator to be used for cultural and spiritual purposes. Commercial tobacco use is the leading cause of death among AI/AN. Creating Connections honors that there are many Indigenous tobacco traditions, including Peoples that do not use tobacco culturally. This proposed project is dedicated to the principles of restorative Indigenous cultural health practices and acknowledges the continued historical imbalance in the health status of American Indians/Alaskan Natives communities and individuals. This project will utilize culturally-based approaches to gather, create, and disseminate tobacco control efforts and strengthen the foundation and understanding of how culture plays a vital role in seeing tobacco as traditional.

Grant Information:

Provide funding to five (5) Tribal Nations to implement community-led culturally based initiatives and solutions around traditional tobacco. These grants will support the cultural systems of knowledge practices and principles to generate and implement cultural teachings and stories that lead to community-led solutions.

Grantees will receive training and technical assistance and opportunities to support the sustainability of their community's traditional tobacco (growing, harvesting, ceremonies, and relationship to traditional medicines and land).

Proposal information:

Primary Guiding Question: How does tobacco connect?

Page Limit: 5 pages + Appendices (no limit on appendices)

Provide the following information:

- Background: Please provide the brief background information on your tribal traditional tobacco work, including how long the organization has existed, what its focus and mission are and where it is located
- Implementation: Describe how the project activities will support advancing culturally based initiatives focusing on traditional tobacco.
- Sustainability: How will you continue to carry on these teachings into your community?

The cultural, spiritual, and ceremonial use of tobacco is an inherent immutable component for many AI/AN communities. This funding does not ban, prohibit or restrict in any manner the traditional, American Indian communities. The use of cultural tobacco teachings and use are of supreme importance to the health, wellness, and welfare of many of our communities. Cultivation of tobacco for spiritual and ceremonial use is an infinite and inherent right of the Tribal communities.

Supported activities can include but not limited to:

- Support the sustainability of their community's traditional tobacco (growing, harvesting, ceremonies, and relationship to traditional medicines and land)
- Convening of a group of elders
- Travel (locally and nationally) to culturally based events to support traditional tobacco knowledge
- Greenhouse
- Planting Medicine Garden
- Canoes for harvesting
- Plant Walks
- Wild Plant Gathering
- Strengthening cultural tobacco practices including (using tobacco at/during cultural events)
- Smoke-free Pow-wows
- Growing Traditional Tobacco

- Seed Rematriation
